Dmitry Zorikhin joined Lunskeye-Alpha completion and well intervention operations team in 2015.

As part of his work scope were onshore support for pre-job execution activities, such as contractor workshops visits to supervise make-up of the assemblies, assisting in completion programme writing, completion schematic preparation, managing load-out plans prior to job execution, leading after action reviews. Substantial part of his activities within the team was execution CWI operations offshore. He attended 5 jobs offshore during his first year within SEIC and on last 2 wells he took responsibilities as supervisor.

Dmitry developed a document in respect to the Well Diagrams Summary and Wells Database for the Lunskeye-Alpha platform. He completed a deep analysis of geological data, casing designs and completion schemes to create a well status booklet of all Lunskeye wells. These documents have been completed and have distributed among the Technical Directorate Wells (TDW) and Field Development departments and are highly appreciated by all staff. This booklet is utilized by staff ensuring that everyone is working with the same correct and valid information.

Dmitry Zorikhin is an intelligent and reliable engineer who demonstrated strong technical skills and made an excellent contribution to our team.

I can see Dmitry's high potential in the industry. He broadens his knowledge and experience by investigating adjacent to CWI subjects such as hydrocarbon production, managing projects, digitalization and data analysis. His education rate and willingness to gain experience are strong basis for his prompt development.
